

Minerva Sleeping Giant Seniors Celebrate 54 Years with Annual Picnic

Donnelly Beach at Minerva Lake was the scene of 32 Minerva seniors gathering to celebrate another year of their organization. Steve Bower's good grilling and Paul Lampson's tasty corn-on-the-cob were the 'meat-and-potatoes' of the event. Irene Koch, 100 years old earlier this year, sat with Heidi Kelly, Minerva resident and representative of the Community Fund at Gore, who awarded the Sleeping Giants a $1,000 grant earlier this season.

Just days before, the seniors attended "Fiddler on the Roof" at Seagle Colony, aided financially by said grant.

The Giants are very active and always open to new members. Just recently our numbers have grown! In the photo, members Michael McSweeney and Phil Johnson sport the Sleeping Giants shirts; seated are Irene Koch and Heidi Kelly.
